Exam grades on the rise

HACKNEY students had cause for celebration as GCSE and A-level results arrived with some record-breaking performances.

The number of pupils achieving five A*-C grades, including English and Maths, rose to 58 per cent this year. Once results across the country have been analysed, it is hoped this will be above the national average for the third year in a row. Provisional figures indicated that A level passes in Hackney were also at an all-time high. There were some amazing individual results, with Le-My Dang, from Clapton Girl's Technology College, in E5, getting the borough's best grades with 12 A*s at GCSE. For more info and pictures turn to pages 8-9

LOVE HACKNEY WEEKEND

A WEEKEND packed full of events to bring the whole community together takes place in Hackney on 17 and 18 September.

The 'We Love Hackney' weekend includes films, live music and performances, architecture, food and drink, children's entertainment, and sees the proud return of Hackney One Carnival, which was cancelled last month following the riots in Tottenham.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "After the events of recent weeks, this is the real Hackney coming together to celebrate all the positive things that happen here. I hope as many residents as possible are able to get along to enjoy the events."

On Saturday, 17 September, activities are based in Hackney Central with highlights including the Hackney Homemade Market and Pop Up Food Festival in St John at Hackney Churchyard. Visitors can also try out some Olympic sports and find out about 2012 job opportunities, or watch a programme of short films in the evening.

Children's theatre, juggling and giant board games will provide fun on the Narrow Way. And residents are invited to bring a dish for 'Come Dine With Us' on Wilton Way, where there will also be a dog show, vintage makeovers and more.

Historic buildings including Sutton House, Hackney Empire, Stoke Newington Town Hall, and St Augustine's Tower will be open for tours on Saturday and Sunday as part of the Open House

London architecture festival.

The Robert Levy Foundation presents 'Trust' at the Hackney Empire – a free performance by young people including singing, dance, poetry, spoken word and drama.

Sunday, 18 September, sees the return of Hackney One Carnival, bringing the streets to life with spectacular costumes, energetic dance and uplifting music by hundreds of performers from carnival and community groups across the borough. The parade begins at midday at Ridley Road Market and works its way north up the A10 to Stoke Newington Church Street.

The Council is supporting a number of other community events including the Hackney Wick Festival, featuring music, dance, theatre, art and design, food and more.

A local campaign raised £30,000 for Siva Kandiah's Clarence Road convenience store, which was badly looted during the August riots

Help after the riots

A SHOPKEEPER whose store was targeted by looters has received £30,000 to help keep him in business.

Residents and the Council rallied around Siva Kandiah, whose Clarence Road convenience store was devastated during riots on 8 August, causing £70,000 of damage.

The 'Save Siva's Shop' campaign, which has now closed, saw donations pour in from around the world. The store owner received further support from the Council including help with the clean-up, repairs, a suspension of business rates and general advice.

Many more businesses and individuals were affected by the riots, and as well as support from the local community and Council, a range of other support measures are available. Anyone who suffered damage to property can seek compensation under the Riot Damages Act. Claims must be received within 42 days of the incident.

The Government has announced the High Street Fund to provide finance for small businesses waiting for insurance payouts or other funding. The scheme, backed by firms including Barclays, Capita and Lloyds Banking Group, will offer successful applicants emergency grants of up to £2,000. Margaret Asare, of Eye London Opticians, Mare Street, has already received a High Street Fund grant. Her shop had nearly £20,000 worth of frames stolen during the riots.

The High Street Support Scheme has also been set up to provide £20million in business rate hardship relief for small and medium-sized businesses. The Council is responsible for administering the fund locally and is already using it to support traders.

In addition, HM Revenue and Customs has said it is helping riot hit businesses which are having difficulty paying their taxes.

The Law Society has a dedicated helpline offering free legal guidance to riot victims and some banks are also giving financial advice.

The London-wide police investigation into the riots continues. There have been 168 arrests in Hackney so far, with 110 people charged and 40 currently on bail. About half were aged between 18 and 25, one quarter was over 25, with the rest under 18. Three people were arrested after CCTV images of suspected offenders were published in Hackney Today.

The police have now released a further set of pictures of rioters they want the community's help to identify (see opposite page), including one of a man brandishing a large rock.

Making waves

Some of the participants in the New Age Games – free activities for over 50s start on 12 September

ARCHERY, fencing and soca aerobics are just some of the many free activities on offer to residents over 50 as part of the Council's 2012-inspired New Age Games programme.

Wheelchair user Robert Lang (pictured right) is one of the programme's many enthusiasts, attending at least five sessions a week, including archery, fencing, gym and badminton.

Hauwa Tobolayefa learned to ride a bicycle for the first time thanks to the New Age Games.

"I really enjoyed learning to ride a bike. I now have freedom and I've bought a bike of my own," she said.

The next 12-week programme starts on 12 September. Activities take place at five Hackney leisure centres – Kings Hall, Britannia, Energie Fitness, Queensbridge, Clissold, with cycling on Hackney Marshes, watersports at Leaside, jogging and fitness at Mabley Green and walking in Clissold and Shoreditch parks.

Attendance during the summer programme was unsurprisingly up 35 per cent on wintertime, with an average of 257 people trying out sessions each week.

Feedback is positive, with people saying they feel fitter and that taking part in the games encourages them to get out of the house and meet new people.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture said: "The New Age Games is becoming increasingly popular and people say they enjoy learning new sports in a supportive and relaxed setting. Most people taking part say they've made new friends and some report health benefits such as lower blood pressure."

The New Age Games Finals are set to take place on 6 December at Clissold Leisure Centre, with medals given for excellence, attendance and learning a new skill or sport.

This year, participants will also be entered in the Hackney Sports Awards on 3 November.

Hackney Marshes has 82 sports pitches for leagues, schools, community groups and residents

DID YOU KNOW?

Home is where the Marsh is

Old Streetonians Rugby Club is set to kick off matches at the team's new Hackney Marshes home

A LOCAL rugby club has made Hackney Marshes its permanent home – just in time to celebrate its 20th birthday.

Old Streetonians Rugby Club is the latest sports club to make the Marshes its long-term base, after signing a community use agreement with the Council. For nearly two decades the club has been without a permanent home ground.

From this month however, the club will play all its home matches on three new rugby pitches and have use of the new Hackney Marshes Centre. The agreement also requires that the club helps develop youth rugby in the borough. Soccer club Sporting Hackney FC signed a similar deal earlier this year.

Old Streetonians chairman Ian Heptonstall described the move as a 'homecoming'. He said:

"This is fantastic news, not just for Old Streetonians but for rugby across East London. We've always been proud to call Hackney our home and now we have the facilities to match our ambitions. In time this could become the high-quality hub for the sport in East London."

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "The multi-million pound improvements on Hackney Marshes are really taking shape. Hackney Council is delighted to be able to provide Old Streetonians with a long-term home and the people of Hackney with a first-rate rugby facility."

Cycle circuit gets green light

A NEW area of open space and riverside access is to be created in Hackney, following agreement over an alternative scheme for a cycle circuit in the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park.

The Council and Olympic Park Legacy Company (OPLC) opposed an original plan that would have seen a competitive cycling track cut through the borough's legacy parkland, making part of the park and the water's edge less accessible to park users.

A second plan put forward by the OPLC and supported by the Council was then opposed by Sport England and the competitive cycling community.

Now a compromise plan for the one-mile circuit has been agreed by all parties, including British Cycling and Lee Valley Regional Park.

In a joint statement, they said: "The new plan will also ensure that cyclists are able to enjoy a mile long circuit that crosses the river into the parklands."

"The circuit will be part of the wider Lee Valley VeloPark with a new, enhanced area for mountain bike trails directly adjacent to the BMX track, on land to the east of the Velodrome."

News in brief

New entrance for London Fields Station unveiled

A NEW second entrance to London Fields Station has been opened to ease access.

A range of improvement works have been carried out at the station in recent months, including creating a second entrance into Martello Terrace, E8.

The aim of the works, which also include installation of internal and external CCTV, new information boards and signage, electronic departure boards, and new platform seating, is to boost the numbers of people using the station, which has already increased 10-fold over the last 15 years.

The new facilities have also resolved access issues on the park side of the station, removing the need to pass under the railway arches. For more info about public transport and travel in Hackney, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/movegreener

Hoxton Market goes vintage

HOXTON Street Market has added antiques and collectables to its stalls – and is offering reduced trading rates for students.

The Antique Forum Group will have a number of vintage stalls at the N1 market on the last Friday of every month. To attract younger traders, the forum will subsidise student stalls by 50 per cent, so the first month's rent is only £7.50 (on presentation of a student ID card).

The Council invited residents to have their say on the future of the market earlier this year. The consultation revealed strong support for setting up an antiques market as a new attraction for Hoxton Street. The market is open 7.30am-6pm Monday to Saturday. Anyone interested in setting up a stall selling antiques or vintage wares should contact the Council for more information. # Party like it's 2012

Residents enjoyed dance workshops, live music, entertainment, sports activities and much more at a Hackney Homes' fun day on Mabley Green

OVER 1,000 residents came out to celebrate an Olympic-themed fun day on Mabley Green organised by Hackney Homes.

An array of activities were on offer for all ages on 28 August – from resistance sliding, bungee flying to fancy dress racing, tennis, wall climbing and much more.

Singers and musicians entertained the crowds, while children enjoyed getting their faces painted and playing in a bouncy castle and soft play areas.

Bingo was the name of the game for many older residents who met and mingled with new and old neighbours.

Hackney Homes' officers were also on hand throughout the day to provide information for residents about their services including repairs, reporting anti-social behaviour and ways to get involved in more community events.

Bangla and Zumba workshops also drew crowds with many participating in the dance styles to have fun and get fit.

Resident Marie Charlotte Reilly said: "I loved the entertainment and children's activities. It was an all round fun day."

The Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Susan Fajana-Thomas, added: "With less than a year to go until the start of the Games, it was heartening to see so many people from in and around the borough turn out for this Olympic-themed fun day, so close to where the actual event will be taking place next year."

Record breakers

SCREAMING, shrugging and at one school, almost collective fainting: GCSE results day saw another record-breaking year for Hackney students – and much cause for celebration.

The borough once again beat its best-ever record for pupils achieving at least five A*-C grades, including English and Maths – 58 per cent hit the mark this year – up three percentage points from 2010. This figure looks likely to be higher than the national average, due to be announced by the Government early next year.

For the third consecutive year, Hackney Free and Parochial School, E9,

“Today's grades are truly outstanding, particularly with so many pupils achieving As and A*s. I'm delighted” has seen its GCSE results improve: 45 per cent of students achieved the benchmark grades.

On results day (25 August), a dazed group of students came close to passing out after seeing their high grades. Hannah Oladugba got two A*s and six As for her GCSEs. Struggling to catch her breath, she said: “I can't believe it, I didn't think I'd get all of those As. I've got to call my Mum!”

Cardinal Pole Catholic School, E9, received its best ever results: 52 per cent made the grade. Nneoma Nwaosu, who received 7 A*s, 2 As and 1 B, said: “I'm really surprised to see the results, I didn't expect that. I'm very happy – I put lots of hard work into my GCSEs, and it's paid off.”

Fifty seven per cent of pupils achieved five or more A*-C grades at Clapton Girls' Technology College, E5, with Le-My Dang getting 12 A*s – the best individual grades in the borough. Headteacher Cheryl Day said: “Today's grades are truly outstanding, particularly with so many pupils achieving As and A*s. I'm delighted that so many of our pupils are staying on with us to sixth form.”

Celebrating its first set of GCSE results since opening in 2006, The Petchey Academy, E8, saw 62 per cent achieve the target grades. Principal Olivia Cole thanked staff for ‘the time and commitment they have generously given in our quest to provide a high quality, stimulating and challenging education for our students’.

Mossbourne Community Academy, E5, saw 82 per cent get five or more A*-C grades. Emmanuel Opoku, who got eight A*s and four As, said: “The mock exams were harder, so when I saw the exam paper I knew I had the answers. I'm surprised I got an A* in English as it's my weakest subject.”

Equalling results from last year, 55 per cent hit the mark at Haggerston School, E2. Headteacher Dr Jane

Le-My Dang, Clapton Girls' Technology College
GCSEs: 12 A*s

"I hope to go on to university to do a course in French and another subject so I can work in Paris."

Graham Hodges-Smikle, Stoke Newington School
A-level: AAA

"I've been bouncing off the walls. I just want to say thank you to Stoke Newington for helping me."

Necati Tosun, Hackney Free and Parochial School
GCSEs: Four A*s & five As

"I didn't expect to get the highest grades in the school. Now I'm thinking about going into law."

Victoria Kehinde, Clapton Girls' Technology College
A-level: A*AA

"I'm delighted – because I did so well in Maths I might do this now instead of neuroscience."

Keely said the results were a 'tribute to the hard work of all the students and staff'.

At Our Lady's Convent High School, N16, 56 per cent got the benchmark grades. In addition, 15 students achieved nine or more A* or A grades, with Vivien Hoang getting eight A* and four A grades. She said: "I'm really relieved. We'd all been in suspense for months," she said.

Stoke Newington School, N16, saw 60 per cent make the grade, up 10 per cent from last year. Tao Geoghegan Hart was celebrating after adding 5A*s and 5 As to his cycling achievements. Hoping to compete in the 2020 Olympics, he said: "It's been a bit unexpected – I'm just back from racing overseas. It's been challenging juggling studies with my training, but I'm delighted with these results."

At Skinner's Academy, N4, 48 per cent of pupils got five A*-C grades, with 29 per cent securing three or more A* and As; Yesoday Hatorah, N16, saw 79 per cent of students achieve the target grades, up from 76 per cent last year.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe said: "I'm extremely pleased to see another great set of results in Hackney this year."

"This continuing improvement is testament to the hard work and dedication of our pupils and teachers."

Top marks in Hackney A-Levels

HACKNEY A-level students had cause for jubilation as exam results were announced across the country. Provisional figures indicate that Hackney schools, colleges and students have achieved the borough's best results yet.

Our Lady's Convent High School, N16, saw 73 per cent get A*-C grades, with one in four students achieving an A*-A. Nancy Adimora, who got three As, said: "I am very happy. This means I will be going to Queen Mary University where my sister is already studying." Seventy-nine per cent of A-level students achieved A*-C at Stoke Newington School, N16, up 16 percentage points on last year. Seyid Aydin got three As, securing a place at University College London and becoming the first in his family to go to university. Cardinal Pole Catholic School, E9, had 72 per cent achieve A*-C.

Melissa Zaman notched up two As and two Bs. She said: "I am really relieved. I thought I was going to cry with joy when I opened my results." At Clapton Girls' Technology College, 70 per cent got A*-C grades and six students received straight As. Mossbourne Community Academy, E5, saw 83 per cent of students get A*-C grades. At Hackney Community College, N1, 61 per cent got A*-C grades in their

A Levels, while about 98 per cent of students passed their BTEC nationals, with 83 per cent gaining a merit or distinction.

At BSix Sixth Form College, 58 per cent got A*-C grades at A Level. Steve Belk, Acting Chief Executive of The Learning Trust, said: "This is one of the many opportunities we have to shout out loud about Hackney students and their successes and get behind them as they continue their journey."

SHARED HOME OWNERSHIP DOESN'T MEAN HALF MEASURES

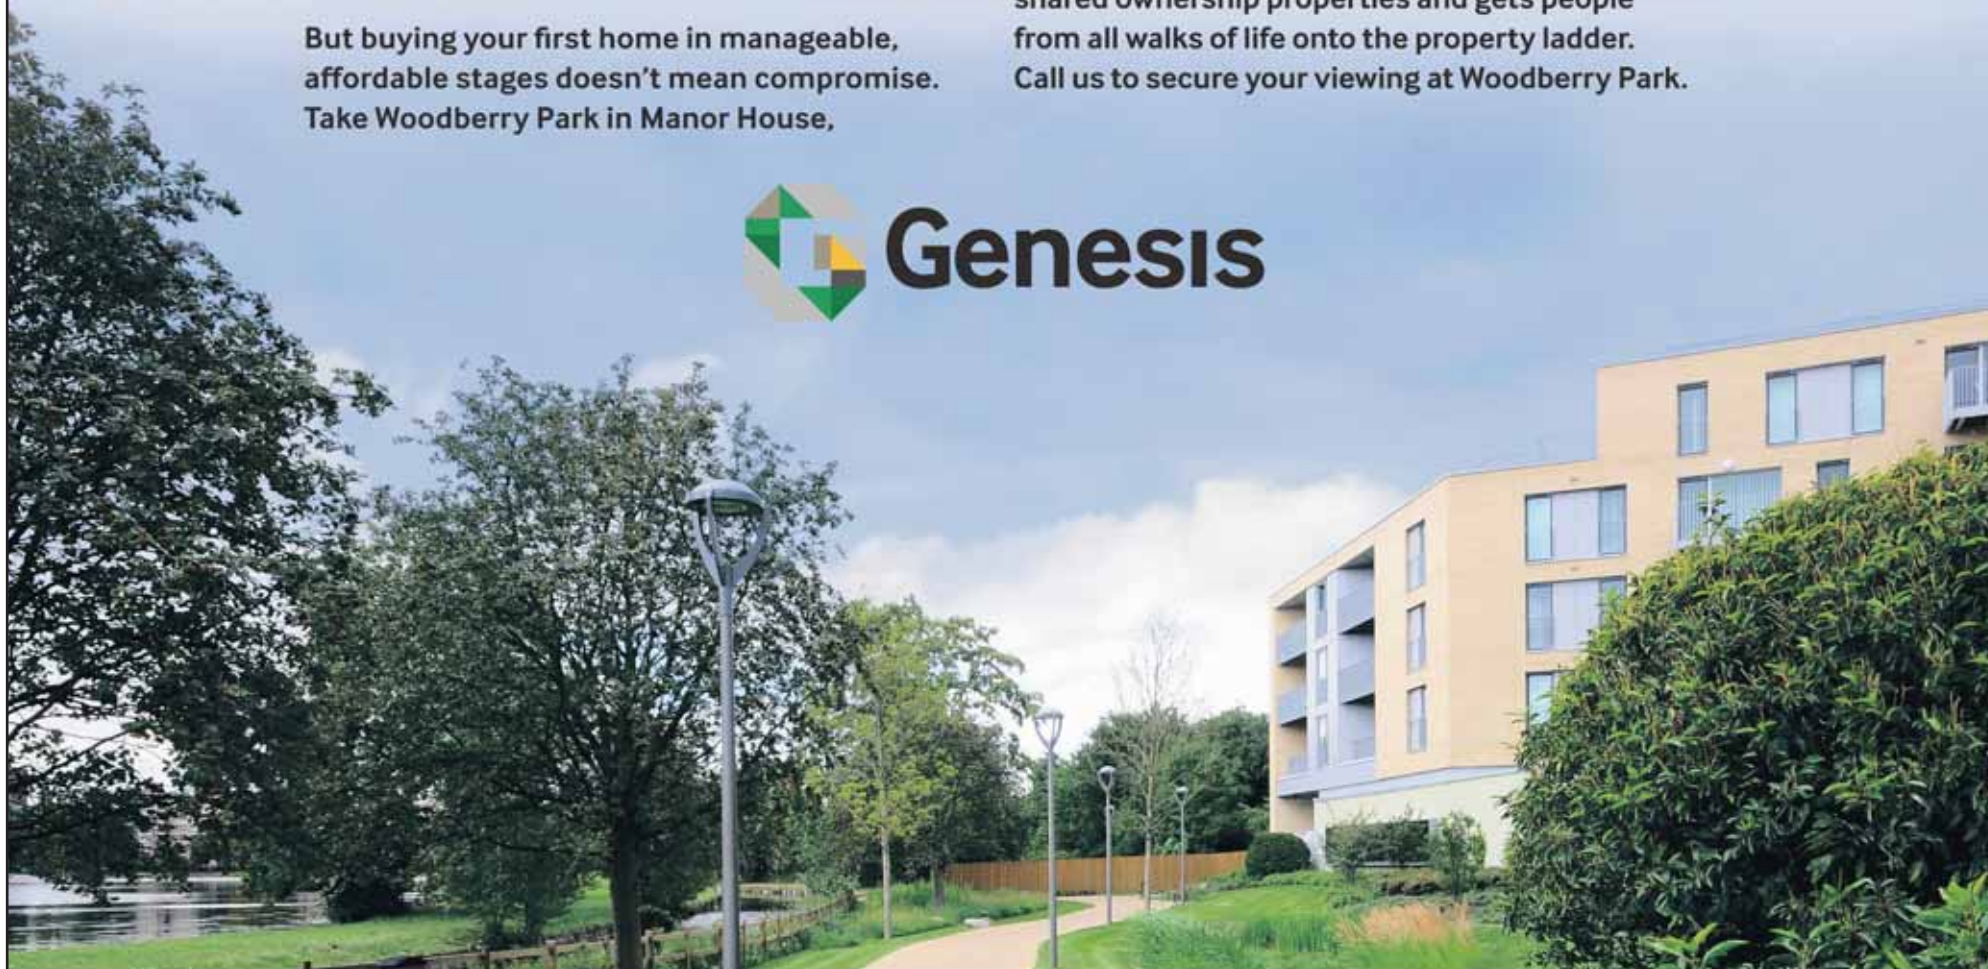

WOODBERRY PARK, MANOR HOUSE N4 2BP

Shared home ownership with Genesis is the smarter way to get on the property ladder – you choose a property you can afford and pay a subsidised rent on the rest. You could save substantially on renting a similar property privately and you can increase your share at any time all the way to 100%.

But buying your first home in manageable, affordable stages doesn't mean compromise. Take Woodberry Park in Manor House, for example. These spacious one and two bedroom apartments with balconies are set in a landscaped eco-park overlooking the West Reservoir, and many have fabulous views towards The City and Docklands.

Genesis is one of the UK's leading providers of shared ownership properties and gets people from all walks of life onto the property ladder. Call us to secure your viewing at Woodberry Park.

Driven to succeed

SunnierDays founder Martyn Sibley has not let his disability stop him living life to the full – his aim now is to inspire others to follow his example and take control of their own future

SUNNIERDAYS is the business name of Stamford Hill resident Martyn Sibley's new media company – and its association with all things cheerful sits well with his happy disposition.

Martyn, 27, was born with Spinal Muscular Atrophy – a genetic disorder which affects nerve cells so that muscles become wasted, or atrophied. Martyn cannot walk, lift anything heavier than a book and needs assistance with most practical tasks.

None of these obstacles however, have stopped him from living a full and adventurous life.

After attending school, Martyn went to Coventry University, where he had his first taste of independent living.

"I needed help from others to do things for me," he recalls. "It was difficult at first, having to teach four complete strangers how to do everything for me; hoisting me into bed or helping me with showering, cooking and cleaning. I was nervous but I had to overcome that."

While still a student, Martyn learnt to drive a hand-controlled car, and undertook a month-long trip to Australia via Singapore – something most people just dream of doing.

He said: "You pick what you want to do, plan to the nth degree and do lots of preparation. I also had two assistants to help me. It was a trip of a lifetime."

When he moved to Stamford Hill a few years ago, it was not long before Hackney began to change the way it provided services for disabled residents with the introduction of the Transformation of Adult Social Care programme.

A key element of the programme is to offer individuals the option of planning their care services themselves by giving them control of their own personal budgets.

As a service user, Martyn finds the new model works for him. "I can get up when I want and shower when I want and use the money to buy services I need, rather than have someone else decide that for me," he says.

In 2009, Martyn began writing articles about his philosophy on life. This led to him setting up SunnierDays, to inspire the disabled community, and others, through new communication channels of blogging, social media, online presentations

"I want to show anything is possible... know your limits, set goals, define barriers, find solutions and grab life"

or 'webinars', online magazines and partnership projects.

SunnierDay's is currently developing a series of online 'webinars' funded by Hackney Council, which go live later this month.

The webinars give practical advice on specific issues such as independent living; how to secure employment, or benefits and accessible housing; accessing local leisure facilities; planning and taking holidays; and making the most of newly introduced personalised care packages.

"I want the sessions to show that anything is possible, give information about useful resources and mindsets, which can lead to a change in quality of life.

"It fits around the philosophy I have of know your limits, set goals, define the barriers, find the solutions and grab life," he says.

THE GREEN GENIE

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I have some old batteries that I need to dispose of, what is the best way to do this?

A: Around 90 per cent of batteries currently end up in landfill sites across the UK, where they leak toxic chemicals into the soil and water, harming the environment and potentially human health. The UK needs to increase its battery recycling to over 25 per cent by next year, and over 45 per cent by 2016. Since last February, retailers that sell over 32 kg of batteries (equivalent to one four pack of AA batteries a day) are required by law to accept used ones for recycling. The Council has also put eight battery recycling bins in all its libraries. The preferred option however, rather than recycling, is to buy rechargeable batteries that save people money and are better for the environment.

Salad addressing

Ximena Ransom checks the Springfield Park crop; Sophie Verhagen shows off the latest batch of leaves

GROWING Communities is opening up its three main food gardens to residents on 18 September.

The social enterprise produces organic salad leaves at Clissold Park, Springfield Park and Allens Gardens and is giving local people a chance to meet the growers and apprentices as well as find out more about organic food production.

Its crops are sold to restaurants, cafes and people across the borough in its vegetable and fruit box scheme; and the salad bags have been highly commended in the Soil Association Organic Food Awards 2011.

In addition, the sustainable building at the Allens Garden site has an eco-classroom with a green roof to attract insects, a composting toilet and sustainable insulation. The site is being featured as part of this year's architectural programme Open House London.

Growing Communities' Director, Julie Brown, said: "We're really proud of our zero-food-miles salad and it's great that the Soil Association judges thought it tasted fantastic too. The quality and variety of leaves are testament to the hard work of our growers, Sara and Pip, and their team of apprentice growers and patchwork farmers – all graduates from our apprentice scheme."

Kestrel spotting in the city

LONDON Wildlife Trust (LWT) is looking to bird lovers to help it establish the number of kestrels residing in the city.

Nationally, kestrels have undergone an overall decline, but the population has seen fluctuations, with current trends suggesting an increase.

The charity wants to know if this trend extends to London, which has seen the surrounding countryside change and the city become much more important for wildlife. LWT is asking those who see the fan-tailed bird of prey, which is known to visit Hackney, to log the sighting on its Kestrel Count 2011 website.

In addition, the Council is working with nature website iSpot to arrange free wildlife workshops for target groups in Hackney.

The website also helps visitors identify unknown sightings by allowing them to upload photos for other users to confirm the species. iSpot is particularly keen to work with young people, black and minority ethnic groups, people with disabilities and those from lower socio-economic groups.

Hackney schools recycling more than ever

THE summer term saw the highest ever recycling rates recorded in Hackney schools, with pupils and teachers doubling the amount of paper, tins, cans and bottles that they recycled last year.

The Council provided new canteen bins to help capture more recycling. Plastic bottles, sandwich packets and yoghurt pots from packed lunches were all easier to recycle, and helped to raise recycling levels in schools.

Some Hackney schools are now also recycling food waste. A trial scheme started in 10 schools during the summer term. The food waste is diverted from landfill and is instead taken to a compost processing plant, thereby avoiding the production of harmful gases.

The compost produced is then used to enhance the quality of the soil in school grounds and to help plants grow better. This process is a great way to help pupils see and understand the full benefits of recycling.

But there is still room for improvement, and with the new school year about to begin the Council hopes to see even more waste being recycled in Hackney.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "With all these recycling schemes in place, schools are becoming a hub of recycling activity.

"Having so many options for recycling in schools is helping to develop a real recycling culture among pupils, and to make our young generation a green one."

The Council works with EcoACTIVE a Hackney-based environmental charity to deliver workshops in schools to help staff and pupils establish recycling schemes and recycle as much as possible.

Scipmylo

Shoreditch Town Hall and Comedy Café, E 7-18 September

A new, local and very large comedy festival pulling together many of the finest UK comics is coming to Hackney.

From the quirky observations of Ed Byrne to the perennial l'enfant terrible Jerry Sadowitz, Scipmylo boasts a strong line-up of comedy heavyweights and bright new stars.

The inaugural 11-day festival centres on Shoreditch Town Hall and the nearby Comedy Café in Rivington Street.

founded by local businesses and residents to celebrate economic regeneration in East London alongside the area's cultural vibrancy. Other headliners named include Jo Brand, Josie Lawrence, Sean Hughes, Milton Jones and Steven K Amos (above) but guilty pleasure Paul Daniels (below) could also bring in large crowds. In a bizarre incident, the outspoken magician was reportedly injured by Sooty during filming of the bear's children's TV show last month. Now that's magic.

Hackney Wick Festival

17-18 September, various locations

THE free Hackney Wick Festival returns this month with its family inspired programme celebrating the creative district. Funded by the Council, the community event provides a showcase of performances, exhibitions, market stalls and workshops. Shows this year include belly dancing and music, henna painting, a busking spot for budding entertainers, Pearly Kings and Queens, T-shirt painting, canal rides, a sports taster day and an evening music event. Tracie Trimmer, the event's chairwoman, said: "The festival started a few years ago as a result of an arts project with Space Studios.

"Now as a residents voluntary organisation we run the festival; there's a lot of positive feelings in the area and the Olympics have really given it a sense of community. That's what this festival focuses on.

"We have a vast arts sector here and sometimes residents and the artists don't always understand each other, but the festival aims to bridge the gap between the two.

"I'm always really proud of the work we do here and this year, it's going to be bigger and better than ever."

Hackney Revisited

Chat's Palace, E9, until 9 October

IF London is a city in flux, then it is perhaps the borough of Hackney that best reflects the pace of its transformation in the 21st century. A new collaborative project by two local photographers this month captures some of the change and continuity that characterises Hackney's iconic locations.

'Hackney Revisited' was conceived when East London artist Alex Pink bought a book of black and white photos by Berris Conolly, a photographer who lived in Stoke Newington until 1988 and built up a collection of documentary images of the area.

"I was instantly taken by the unique collection of powerful photographs and knew that they had to be updated," says Alex. Taking Berris' pictures as a template, Alex has revisited and photographed the same sites in colour, creating a series of paired images that document the physical and social changes wrought over the decades. "I have long been fascinated by the urban landscape and how it effects our everyday lives," he explains. "In some cases the changes have been quite subtle, but others are no longer recognisable. Many old buildings are being replaced, and once they are gone, they are gone forever."

Schoolchildren from six Hackney schools performed in the Mind The Gap initiative, which helps pupils get used to life at secondary school

P RIMARY school pupils from across Hackney have written, rehearsed and performed their own show at the Arcola Theatre in Dalston.

Youngsters from six schools, who have been identified as 'being at risk of disengaging from education', took part in summer project 'Mind The Gap', a new initiative to help young people make a smooth transition from primary to secondary school. Working alongside theatre professionals from Okai Collier Company and New London Orchestra, the pupils spent two weeks preparing at their future secondary schools – either Petchey Academy or Urswick School (formerly Hackney Free and Parochial School). Rehearsing in both venues gave them a chance to become familiar with their new surroundings and journey to school before term begins. A 100-strong audience then saw them perform a short musical 'The Last Crystal of the Dominator' on 14 August.

The programme, which is funded by the Paul Hamlyn Foundation, continues in term time with a series of mentoring sessions and events to further support pupils. Hackney business education partnership Inspire!, which runs the project, hopes current students will become mentors to the next intake of new pupils in 2012.

Summer class success for Hackney's young people

A GROUP of Hackney young people outside mainstream education took part in activities this summer to help them keep motivated during the holidays.

For six weeks, Inspire!, the education business partnership for Hackney, offered classes from cookery and drama, to fashion and beauty, for young people at New Regent's Vocational College, the borough's pupil referral unit. It caters for young people unable to attend conventional or special schools.

One student, Harley Von Haidenthaler, 15, said: "The nail day was really fun.

I painted my partner's nails. I also really enjoyed the hip hop as I'm hoping to break into the music business."

Project manager, Dorothy Hodgson, said: "We see the summer project as a positive way to keep them focused and perhaps help them discover a new talent. Our hip-hop week, for example, uncovered some fantastic vocal talent and the students were motivated to write some rap that came out against the recent riots."

Japanese visit to Ann Tayler Centre

EDUCATION staff from Japan visited the Ann Tayler Children's Centre in London Fields to find more about childcare provision in the capital.

During their Hackney stopover, the 21 Japanese teachers, teacher trainers and welfare officers showed particular interest in child-minding and how home childcare is regulated and inspected in England.

In Japan, government-registered nurseries are said to be oversubscribed – with a shortage of quality childcare cited as a reason for a lower proportion of working mothers in the country.

The Learning Trust's Head of Early Years, Angela Scattergood, accompanied the group on their visit. She said: "They were really interested in how the centre is organised and the types of activities the children do. They're keen to develop a partnership with us and share ideas in the future."

The trip was organised by the Research Institute for the System of Childcare and Early Childhood Education in Tokyo, Japan.

A page for young people in Hackney

Radio 1's Ade Adeluwoye addresses the young people (top right) as they share ideas of their vision for the Hackney Weekend 2012

Having their say

YOUNG people were thrilled to be joined by DJ Tim Westwood at a planning event for the BBC Radio 1 Hackney Weekend 2012.

The group of 40 local teenagers were invited to join top BBC executives to share their ideas on what should be included in the free live music event due to take place at the Marshes on 23 and 24 June next year. Moonisah, 14, a member of Homerton Youth Forum, said: "To let us have a say in one of the biggest events in Hackney is impressive."

"It's great to know that people really care about us and that there are opportunities like this in Hackney."

Kim, 17, a former Hackney Youth Parliament member and aspiring athlete, said: "I feel what we say will have an impact, as the event is for young people and they need our views and this is a good way to get them across. It was good of the BBC to have Tim Westwood come along too as he's a huge attraction for young people here."

Ade Adeluwoye, the BBC's 2012 senior planner, said: "It's really important to us that we get a real insight into what Hackney means to local young people."

The afternoon workshop at the Graeae Theatre on 4 August was part of a wider programme of work the BBC is running with young people in Hackney ahead of next summer's event. The majority of the 100,000 free tickets will be allocated to Hackney residents and those living in the surrounding boroughs.

Young festival goers rock the house

By Stream Conyer, 14

UNDERAGE is a festival for 14 to 17-year-olds. This year it featured amazing artists such as Bombay Bicycle Club, Crystal Fighters, Miles Kane, Dog Is Dead and Rizzle Kicks.

It gives me goose bumps thinking back to some of the songs they played that day; it reminds me of the excitement I felt.

The bass travelling through the ground and through your body in a split second – the experience was truly unforgettable.

I was lucky enough to meet Dog Is Dead. They are really down to earth and enjoy spending time with their fans.

However, you could tell the lead singer was feeling overwhelmed by all the attention they were getting. Their music was incredible, though, and the crowd loved it.

Just as some festival-goers were leaving Bombay Bicycle Club started to play 'Always Like This' and everyone ran back towards the stage. The atmosphere was unbelievable. Some older teens found it hard to come out of their shells, though. They were acting as though they were too cool, or embarrassed, to dance. In all, I think festivals are better left to the younger generation.

THE Council has announced free swimming sessions for disabled residents and their carers to celebrate one year to go until the Paralympic Games in 2012.

Dervis Konuralp, Hackney's very own Paralympic star, helped launch the free programme by swimming some laps of Clissold Leisure Centre on 29 August.

Participants in the scheme can also take advantage of free swimming lessons.

The participating pools are Kings Hall Leisure Centre, E5; Britannia Leisure Centre, N1; Clissold Leisure Centre, N16; and London Fields Lido. The Council already provides free swimming for under 18s and over 60s in the borough.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Not only is swimming a good way to exercise it's also a great social activity. With one year to go until the 2012 Paralympic Games, we are delighted to be able to extend our successful free swimming scheme to include disabled people and their carers."

To take advantage of the scheme, residents just need to produce proof of eligibility at participating pools.

News in brief

Disability Backup forum is relaunched

DISABILITY Backup has returned thanks to a new host organisation, Age UK Hackney.

The forum, which gives residents with disabilities a say in the way services are shaped in the borough, closed in March after its previous host organisation, Hackney Family Backup, closed. Team members continued to run the network, until a partnership with Age UK Hackney was established in July.

Project worker, Carol Davis, from Age UK Hackney, said: "We are delighted to be working with Disability Backup and supporting its members' efforts to achieve equality for disabled people in Hackney."

Disability Backup is a user-led body for disabled people living in Hackney. Funded by the Council, the forum gives service users the opportunity to influence change in the borough and be consulted about issues affecting them.

The next meeting is on 23 September at 10.30am in St Luke's Church, Homerton Terrace, E9. For more information, call: 020 7241 5908; or e-mail: caroldavis@ageukhackney.org.uk

Care charges – have your say

RESIDENTS who receive care services from the Council are being asked for their views on plans to change how much they pay towards their care.

The Fairer Charging Policy consultation is aimed at people who use services, including those who receive help at home with preparing food or with washing; people who attend day care centres; and those in receipt of personal budgets. Carers, service providers, Council staff, partners and residents are also being consulted.

The policy follows national guidance on how local authorities should charge for non-residential care services and how that is calculated by taking into consideration service users' income and benefits.

The consultation runs until 10 October. Service users have been sent information packs directly to their homes. Consultation documents are also available on the Council website and at public access points.

Information is on offer in a variety of formats including versions in easy read, Braille and large print.

To find out more, call: 020 8356 6244. To take part in the consultation online, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/fairer-charging; or e-mail: consultation@hackney.gov.uk

Little relief for the poor

THE first workhouse in Shoreditch consisted of a group of old houses repaired to make them suitable for the accommodation and employment of the parish's poor people.

Established in 1726, it stood on the west side of Hoxton Street, between a footpath known as Workhouse Lane (now Ivy Street) and a cartway, later named Hemsworth Street. By 1731, there were 84 inmates, including children, who were employed to spin wool into yarn for mops.

In 1774, the parish Trustees of the Poor secured the Shoreditch Poor Law Relief Act, enabling it to build a new workhouse on the eastern half of an estate, which had been bequeathed to the parish, between Kingsland Road and Hoxton Street, named the Land of Promise. Work began in 1776, and was finished a year later at a cost of £3,336. In August 1778, the Bishop of London consecrated a small burial ground for paupers behind the building.

The name Land of Promise was given to a small access road from Hoxton Street. It survived the closure of the workhouse and demolition of the majority of buildings, but the street name is now long gone.

The workhouse catered for the sick as well as the poor and included an infirmary with two wards. However, it was only with the arrival of Dr James Parkinson in 1813 that London's first isolation ward was established to segregate infectious patients. By 1834, however, conditions had deteriorated and a special Parliamentary sub-committee investigating workhouse provision was heavily critical of the institution. There was chronic overcrowding, with 1,100 inmates in accommodation meant for 800, the water supply was contaminated and the

[illegible]

In 1859, it was decided that the workhouse should be turned into a general hospital and health centre to serve the Shoreditch area, not just the workhouse. Two years later it was resolved that a new and expanded workhouse should be built.

Work began in 1863 and was completed in 1866. During the construction, the conditions and practices at Shoreditch workhouse were criticised in a series of articles in medical journal

The Lancet.

The author noted that: "It is a frightful accumulation of human failures, treated with utter neglect of their human character; kept in tolerably clean rooms, and fed with sufficient food, as we would kennel dogs in decent kennels, but not otherwise recognised or treated as deserving of moral or intellectual consideration."

The passing of the Metropolitan Poor Act of 1867 was hastened by the outcry that followed The Lancet articles. It established separate infirmaries next to workhouses and also a dispensary for 'the pauper sick'. Shoreditch Poor Law Board purchased land on Hoxton Street, and authorised £10,000 for the necessary alterations and additions to the workhouse and infirmary. These steps would gradually lead to the workhouse infirmary becoming St Leonard's Hospital, more about which in the next issue.

wards for chronically ill patients were badly ventilated and too close to healthy inmates. So notorious was the situation that it became the subject of a comic play entitled 'Revolt or, The Workhouse

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010. Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

Please note that some councillors do not hold surgeries in August. To check surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

DESPITE having studied BTEC Media at college, 21-year-old Philip Nhan was unemployed for ten months before joining The Hoxton Apprentice through charity Partners in Hope. He enjoyed cooking and wanted to learn more. The training provided at the Apprentice helped him to build his culinary skills and taught him how to create 'fancy' dishes. Working at the Apprentice has also enabled Philip to develop team work skills and helped him to become more confident and sociable. The entire experience has encouraged him to continue working in the culinary field. "I really enjoyed my time here at The Hoxton Apprentice. If it wasn't for the experience and time I have spent here, I wouldn't be where I am now," he said.

Lemon curd

Preparation time 30mins

Cooking time 15-30mins

Ingredients

- 4 large eggs
- 4 large lemons
- 225g unsalted butter
- 350g caster sugar

Method

- Cut butter into small cubes
- Put the lemon zest and juice, the sugar and butter into a saucepan. On a low heat, gently stir the mixture until the butter has melted, then take it off the heat
- Lightly whisk eggs and stir into the lemon mixture. Continue to whisk until all of the ingredients are well combined, then leave it to cook over a medium heat for 10-13 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the mixture is creamy and thick enough to coat the back of a spoon

- Remove the curd from the heat and set aside to cool, stirring occasionally as it cools
- Once cooled, spoon the lemon curd into sterilised jars and seal them immediately
- Store the jars in a cool place (ideally a fridge) until ready to serve.

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house.

Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain a NVQ in Hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people. If you would like to offer an apprentice a job, or become an apprentice yourself, call Ben Anderson on: 020 7749 2800.

Residents' survey – what matters most?

EACH year the Council's Overview & Scrutiny board conducts a survey of residents and local organisations to understand what aspects of borough life they feel could be improved.

The board takes a strategic view of issues in Hackney, and feedback from the survey helps decide the focus of its work for the coming year. The board co-ordinates five Scrutiny

Commissions, which are responsible for examining Cabinet decisions and how it carries out the day-to-day running of the Council. They also look at how the Council and partner organisations could improve services in the borough. Each commission is made up of councillors who work across party political lines to investigate issues of local concern. This year's survey attracted over 200 responses with youth services, crime, Council budgets, health services and housing coming out as the most important areas for review. To view the full report, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/consultation or e-mail: consultation@hackney.gov.uk with 'annual scrutiny survey report' as the subject.
